I'm hoping some wiz kid can develop some new battery technology so I can put a big fat traction motor in my truck and have an electric vehicle. I'm thinking about working out some details for an around town truck but 100 miles is about it for range these days. yep, gas prices suck. There must be a good reason but isn't gas very expensive in Iraq? Has to make you wonder. I don't see what we have liberated, saved, enlightened. Or just made plain old better in any way over there. Security risk? There are street gangs in LA that are a higher security and terrorist risk than Iraq. They like to fight over there. It's clearly evident by the past history combined with the day to day goings on. I wonder if you took the money for college and put it into a retirement plan, if the kid wouldn't be better off 50 years later?
