of when I was in grad school. I came out to my Jeep only to find some ahole had backed up really close to my bumper in a parallel parking space. Bad thing was (or good) I was on the last legal parking space and the forementioned ahole was in the yellow, just ahead of me and about 2" away. I obviously couldn't get out, so a quick shift to 4-low and away the small car in front of me went. My tires smoked a little, but the smile on my face and the satisfaction that gave me was well worth it. Geez, I still laugh at that.....Colin
