I was today on coffee break with an old friend of mine (guitarist), he lives in NL now and I see him about once a year. Apart from old odd jokes, we have really nothing to say. Interesting stories? I tried really hard to forget everything about this "...Existence, well what does it matter? I exist on the best terms I can. The past is now part of my future, The present is well out of hand. Heart and soul, one will burn."
