Well, the opinions are splitted about 50:50..."Eurosceptics" think that this multinational state isn`t good solution for our country/people. Both sides have good arguments, but my opinion is that we were in the common states with big countries before - it didn`t work (at least for us).And why we need to "turn off" our independency after only a few years, and many fell for that through the centuries? Relations with "Western Europe" - my opinion that best relations are through fair and (on an equal footing) trade and tourism.
