Well; I'm sorry you see it as a debate. I just have an interest in it. It's not like politics or music where you take a point of view and defend it. It just is what it is. I only read about it due to my personal interest and because I have kids in school; I like to know what's what. I hope it works out for you with your boys. If you want to seek more info I would be glad to communicate on that issue; but I don't really see it as a debate. There are so many variables regarding testing and scoring that it is hard to pin down any absolutes; consequently a debate is probably non-productive.
