On a flyer (and just because it was new) I checked out afilm at the local library called "Eternal Sunshine Of TheSpotless Mind." The IMDb gave this 9 out of 10 stars and I usually trust the judgement of IMDb ratings and have read IMDb formany years. But the big clue that this would be a dog is the fact that it was written by Philip Kaufman whose previousworks such as "Adaptation" with Nicholas Cage I turned offafter 10 minutes. Kaufman hasn't learned much since the last film andthose who finace these pictures haven't learned much eitherbecause it suffers from the same glaring problem and thatis that both pictures are entirely self-referential. No matter what character is speaker, you know it'sthe screenwriter. Well, that's enough of me being speechless. I haven't hated one author so much since Woody Allen,which is on-going I might add.
