Subject: Hey; Humans And Chimps Interbred. New Findings
Posted by Manualblock on Thu, 18 May 2006 23:23:55 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Interesting but when you think about it it had to be. No species would just emerge out of thin air. They had to have branched out somewhere along the line. New evidence from the scientific community tells us they were messing around with each other for a couple million years. Must have been a messy divorce. I've seen a few like that.