

---

Subject: PC Question

Posted by FredT on Wed, 20 Jun 2007 21:26:53 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Every few days I'll find my hard drive running continuously for a few minutes. When this happens I might as well go away and not use the computer until it finally stops, because it seems to take precedence over any other program I try to run. I checked the program manager and found an application called AppSvc32.exe is using about 70 to 80% or more of my processor capacity when this happens. Does anybody know what this application is and whether I can disable it?

---