Michael Moore started this trend. Blatant lies told in the form of a documentary. It caught on with the Dems big time. Look at Dan Rather. Look at Newsweek and its story about the Koran. I see a pattern here. No story to tell? Make one up. Make up a story about Neal Horsley. Make up a story about Ann Coulter. Make up a story about Bush, make up a memorandum, make up this, make up that... Let me tell you what, ladies and gents. This little game is part of a children's tale. When you "cry wolf" enough times, when there's something real to bitch about no one will pay attention. From the looks of the news these days, it has already happened. Good job, Dems.
