You just exposed your beliefs and your logic/education/background. I can only smile a little on your "arguments", but for yourself. I don't want any public or private arguments about my religion with atheists who must prove their shallow "rational" beliefs. Automechanics "arguments"? It wouldn't work even on automechanics, they are bright people:-). I lived in "atheistic" and "socialist" country where many politicians and philosophers (well educated in their politics and marxists/rational philosophy) for 45 years constantly explain to the people through all the medias, by any way imagined, even force - the same atheistic/materialistic philosophy/beliefs. The results? About 80% of the population are Catholics today.
