This is a wonderful example of an American view. It shows very well in his last reply. John is concerned with his fellow man, and of the working class. He has been a hard-working American that is always good to his friends and family. He helps those around him, giving advice, engaging in discussions and lending an ear on these forums. John is the perfect example of the American vision of what Capitalism is all about. He's a man among men, and obviously feels best when doing something productive as opposed to just trying to find ways to make a quick buck.
