The web can bee a great place. And sometimes fun. It also allows folks to vent... so we go from the extremes of endorsement, adulation, and approval all the way to envy, flaming, and bizarre behaviour as regards folks expressing opinions on products or personalities.Who thinks Bill Gates gives two poops as to what his net detractors\haters say? Gates realizes that a certain amount of kookattention is the price he must pay. The best the anti gates netkook (who makes stalking gates his occupation or "reason for being") can hope for is to actually get a response from his target. Bill's smarter than that...but what is more fun and not over the edge of sanity... is one of my favorite net "wars".... which is better shimano or campagnolo?I say campy hands down. I say "just say no to Shimano"...for fun do a google search on the phrase "just say not to shimano"...most of the banter btwn the two camps is relatively good natured... though I would guess there are both anti-campy and anti-shimano kooks out there... who might become unglued a bit....but if you really need to know why campy is better just go towww.campyonly.comwhich do you guys like? Are we campy fans or shimano fans?msl
