I ordered a Bottlehead kit once and while I was yakking with Eilleen she tells me they have a guy from overseas looking at the shop he is taking pictures of the underside of the equipment. She says they are not too keen on the guy because he is asking all kinds of questions about the circuits/parts/construction methods but not ordering anything. Then he places one order she tells me; has the piece for a while; then wants to return it. Hard to believe this stuff happenns so blatantly. Thing is all that stuff is pretty basic; what could be the attraction?
