In a post he mentioned how he is angry with the government for trying to take God out of the schools and the Government. But I never had any religion in my schools and truthfully I don't see how it could be done in a fair way anyway; besides the fact that it is unconstitutional. People say that to me sometimes and I am confused because there is a church on every corner around here so it isn't like they can't worship as they please. Just doesn't make any sense to me and then to be angry about it?
