No one owes me anything; but to post and run is not crickets. What you posted was if you read it a screed against all laws that conflict with the things you want to do. So I ask why would you say those things; you know that by getting your rights in these issues you must trample someone else's rights. If you teach your religion in the schools someone else's religion is shunned; if you get the right to smoke in public someone's kid has to breathe that smoke. So I ask what about that? I don't see any insults; if I did I would of course be a gentleman and apologise.
