Subject: Re: A few more things :-)
Posted by Manualblock on Thu, 22 Jun 2006 11:51:26 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Thats the stock answer and BTW thanks for answering at all; thats hard to come by around here; answers I mean.But again; Mexico is a big country with lots of natural resources. The people are hardworking and families are close support systems. The real reason they are coming in droves lies in their inability to create and maintain a serious government. Their government has managed to create a society where the top 1% of the population holds 90% of the wealth. And that is the same direction we in the U.S. are going. They may end up out of the fat and into the fire if the bush administration continues to get the right to decimate the middle class here.And one other thing; your situation is a little different in that the people who are coming into your country are refugees; a humanitarian effort is made on their part. These people here are here to benefit economically due to their allowance of such wealth disparity in Mexico.