Funny you ask, I've been looking about lately. The prices are holding but I don't see much movement. There has been places for sale in a normally fast moving neighborhood still on the blockI have a friend who's going to buy or build in south Florida and I've been looking at that a little. the market there looks like it's down 15% in price right now. What's up on the island? I was looking while in Brooklyn last week. The housing market would have to fall at least in half for me to afford anything!
