

---

Subject: new 4 Pis near completion finally
Posted by GarlandB on Tue, 21 Jul 2009 17:10:44 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Well, I've finally got the new 4 Pis up and running. The old Theater 4 boxes are packed away for an uncertain future. The new 4s sound very good with very punchy bass and more intense midrange than the Theaters had with the same drivers (Omega 15 pros and DE-250s). One concern I have is that the Acrylic batting I'm using nearly touches the rear edges of the port. Might this have some effect on the functioning of the port? Should I push the batting away slightly to allow more freedom of air movement?

BTW, I'm driving the 4's with 12 Watt class D kit amps sold by 41HZ.com. These amps are awesome and at $36 not including a power supply are well worth experimenting with. Highly recommended for clarity, openness, and killer bass.

Garland

---