To all the experts on this forum :

""Testing is very important to be able to get the best of a speaker or array design"" .As a DIY without too much technical knowlege I would be very pleased if I (and probably all the DIY's on this forum)could be easily guided on how and where we could find help for beginners for testing and what are the most important tests one should concentrate on ? Or it would be even better if we could be guided on this same forum .
