I haven't found any good replacement piezo's, no. That's why I stopped using them.

The original Motorola parts sounded good, but there were always a lot of cheap Chinese knock offs that gave piezos a bad name. That and the cheapo prosound speakers with a horizontal array of them, those were the worst. But back to the original question, that of individual parts: My experience with non-Motorola (later CTS) piezos has been very bad quality and poor sound.
