That actually makes a lot of sense. I was only interested in AV123 because of their line arrays, but it seems they are probably more famous for more traditional box speakers.

Oddly, having read ~15 pages of that Audioholics thread, it seems like it is the `60 people who submitted down payment/orders on the new LS6 & LS9 line arrays that got completely ripped off. Kinda seems like the fraud indictment over the fake charity auctions may be smallest part of his crimes.
