I'm careful now that I'm conscious of it. A volume limiter would be a pain as my headphones are all different and I'd have to adjust every time I switched.

I have a fair amount of hearing loss due to many loud concerts, the advent of the walkman when I was a kid (louder the better in those days), being in a band for many years, guns, etc.... We just didn't think about hearing protection 25-30 years ago. I've got a nice permanent ringing to keep me company in a quiet room from here on out.
