I think you did a very good job of comparing things Wayne!

I would have to say after much reading and hearing JBL 2226's and hearing a TD15X at Detroit AKfest (Cosmos speakers) that with the decline of availability of JBL drivers (no longer manufactured in the US as of Apr 2010), the Lambda's will probably be the easiest to obtain in the near future.

I thought the TD15X sounded a lot like a 2226. It takes a larger cabinet, but the sound was very similiar to my ears.

The TD15M is more efficient, but is closer to a Altec 416 driver and I'm not a fan of floppy surrounds on my drivers.
