Subject: Re: Discrimination Against Muslim Americans
Posted by Wayne Parham on Tue, 13 Jul 2010 14:40:22 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Seems like we have an overcompensation in America, a willingness to get beyond 9/11, almost bending over backwards to avoid conflict.  I think most people will try to be fair here, maybe even more than fair.  Sure, there are some who aren't, but that can definitely be said of both sides in any conflict between races or religions or any other ideology.

This Muslim/American thing has been going on ever since the Iranian students took American hostages in the 1970's. I guess even longer than that for the rest of the world, but for Americans, it has been ratcheting up since the 70's.

Now we have Black Panthers wanting to enter the fight too. Seems like some people just want to have something to bitch and fight about. If they don't have anything, they'll make something up.