Subject: Re: Ground loop isolaters
Posted by Wayne Parham on Mon, 09 Aug 2010 16:00:00 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Easy enough to just lift a ground. The most common place I see ground loops is home theater there. Just go from coax to pair and then back again, and the transformer will isolate the cable TV ground from the local earth (third-prong) ground. A lot of times, this will cure a noise problem (usually hum) by isolating the grounds, breaking the ground loop.