Subject: Re: Three 4Pi's in Basic Black for Home Theater Build Thread
Posted by rkeman on Tue, 10 Aug 2010 19:22:40 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Duratex and LSS Aligator finishes are both excellent choices and can provide a fairly matte appearance while still having some life and body. Both are very tough when dry. If cost is an issue, Valspar satin acrylic latex in Kettle Black can be found at Lowes and produces a mild orange peel finish with a smooth roller. At least two coats are necessary over unprimed MDF and plan for about 10 days before the finish is fully dry before monting the drivers.