Subject: Re: The soothing sound of running water.
Posted by Wolfgang on Sun, 24 Oct 2010 07:04:41 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

The sound of light rain falling on the roof is like a lullaby to me. In Thailand they use a rain-effect technic on a glass wall of restaurants in order to psychologically affect the people's mood to drive away the oppressive heat. They also build water-cycler or like an irrigation system in a garden miniatures and mount them in a large basin just outside the door. I also read somewhere that Japanese believe the sound of micro water droplet has a soothing effect psychologically.