No problem at all. That's what this forum is here for and I'm a firm believer that there's no such thing as a dumb question. Better to ask and get it right than to go on a wrong assumption and get it wrong. Can't hurt to sail the question out via internet and check back for the answer at a convenient time. Besides, now the question/answer is there for the next person, just a click away from the search button.
