That's interesting that you are using your computer to watch movies and want to add speakers. I'm assuming you want the high definition available on the computer that may not be available on your TV?

I don't have an HD TV yet and I was thinking of watching movies on my computer as well. Problem with my computer is that it is in my office and I have no comfortable chairs to relax in while I watch. Plus my office is too crowded to make it comfortable for 2 people.
