From what I recall without looking it up, yes. But I'm not about to go putting dimples into _any_ aluminum cones. Apparently J. Krutke got good results out of the driver with use of a BSC which he describes at zaphaudio.com. I built this highboy enclosure for use with the computer here: desktop box at 16 in high for ear level. But I never cared for the sound esp. sealed. I ran them bare with no circuit correction because I am electronically challenged.
