Many thanks for the precious reply, Wayne!

I will try crossed-axes configuration (I actually have a equilateral triangle with speakers in axis with my ears) and phantom mode.

For the sub(s), in order to have a more uniform bass, I suppose it would be necessary to cut actively the front speakers, right? Classical 80Hz cut would be correct?

New plasma screen would be 46 or 50", so I think I'll try for the moment phantom mode with a pair of One Pi as surround (could you send me the plans?) speakers. The room is not large and I'll share Theater 4 between the HT receiver and 300B stereo amp.

Again, many thanks, Wayne!

Vincenzo
