I do like most musicals just because they are really entertaining to watch and I can't help admiring all the effort people put into developing dances and songs to fit the mood. Even if you might not like the genre, you have to admit, these guys who have to actively perform the entire musical deserves a lot of admiration rather than someone who is just talking and attempting to set the mood. I always think of Guys and Dolls. No, it definitely wasn't my favorite musical, but all the songs were catchy and all the dance numbers were amazing, especially when they incorporated real-world actions like gambling.
