I am wanting to get some plans to also build the 4Pi

Now I dont know much about the Pi speakers but have always heard good things about them. I am just wanting a L/R that can slam by itself and atleast hold its own to pretty loud levels with extension good enough to 50hz.

Now I am sure this will do that and the 50hz is just for the sub to cross over to.

I have always wanted to build something like this or the Econowave but never really decided which one. Now I have heard some build the 12" econo and been very happy but another friend made an E-wave with a TD15m and said they have lots of punch and slam to them.

SO I was think something with atleast a 15 would work for me also. Now to extreme levels is more just for headroom. I only have a 14ftx 18ft room with 9ft ceilings I am needing the speakers for. But I would like to have enough volume that I will never really push the speaker. That is the 4Pi yes?
