Thank you for your quick reply. This kind of support is one of the things that made me interested in the pi speakers. That, and of course the fact that so many like the way they sound.

Are todays crossovers not even close to the ones using JBL 2227 and 2426? If they are similar I'll buy a pair and modify. If not, is it possible to buy a layout of the old? Soundwise, are the ones with JBL 2227 and 2426 better or worse, or just different? I know the 2227 is thin in the bottom, but on the other hand has very high sensitivity and good mids.

I made a quick search here before I posted and it seems some people have made succesful changes when it comes to drivers. I hope some of them will chime in. Would be very interesting to hear what they did and what the outcome was.

Once again, thank you for the quick answer.

Regards, Jakob
