
Subject: The death of radio as we knew it
Posted by Wuzajock on Sun, 27 Mar 2011 01:16:39 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Does anyone agree that radio, as we knew it since its inception until the last 10 years, is now dead? When I was growing up, radio announcers were true professionals, ALL of them. Complete with FCC license. Cable TV & music videos hurt it, then the internet made its impact, but satellite radio stations pretty much sounded the death knell I think. People have so many other, better quality sources of music & information. It definitely had its day though, I'm glad I got to experience it
