I used to have Fios and although I had a different box, there was a menu that had some options and two levels deeper in the audio settings was the dynamic reduction.

I would type in the model number and look for a guide to how to access the menu. If there is not one after all, check the TV. I am going on assumption here based on having to turn these things off every time we got a new cable box in the last 5 years. So I hope I'm not leading you on a wild goose chase.
