Yeah, very true Danny. Just look at the superhero movies- the number of Batman and Superman versions with different actors that they've made is really ridiculous.

Some remakes or sequels are better than the original movies. I think producers make remakes or sequels when there are a lot of fans created by the first movie. I agree to some degree that remakes are not good any longer, like the new spider-man that will come out next year.

As far as Rise of the Planet of the Apes, I think this is a good movie. I think this shows the reality of animal shelters where some caretakers are cruel.
