I think it's pretty cool if they let you bring your pet with you to an outdoor festival. I went to one yesterday, and while this couple sat outside listening to music, they placed a cup of water on the ground for their two dogs that they had with them. The dogs, however, preferred their cups of beer to the water, and occasionally lapped at them. Do you know - the couple still drank their beer! Come to think of it, I probably would have, too - I would never let a good beer go to waste!
