Subject: Re: Drapes or Curtains Posted by Wayne Parham on Fri, 13 Jan 2012 05:49:04 GMT View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Curtains (or drapes) are effective at very high frequencies, but not lower. I find them to be useful for catching the "grazing blow" of the ipsilateral wall reflection of a speaker toed-in 45°, but only at high-frequencies. It's a very specialized case, I know, but it's useful for that. Perfect for catching the edge of any remnant of HF reflection from constant directivity cornerhorns. Not really useful for anything else.

Page 1 of 1 ---- Generated from AudioRoundTable.com