I hardly go to Best Buy, but I needed to kill some time yesterday. I head to the audio area, and they had a pretty good selection. The thing that killed me, was the audio demo room was in horrible shape. No music was playing, to draw me in. There was dust on everything, like the audio demo room was a neglected tomb. There wasn't even a salesperson over there. Are all stores like this now? Are audio demo rooms no longer needed?
