

---

Subject: Re: Favorite Music--Again.

Posted by MWG on Sat, 02 Sep 2006 23:15:50 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

I have several of their earlier albums and like them all. The one that chronicles all the band's changes is pretty good. I like them better after they got a drummer. I also heard one of their later releases a while back it sounded great. I noticed that Maddy's voice won't go as high anymore but she's still crystalline clear as ever. I have a blues album that most blues fans turn their noses up at. It's Aerosmith's Honkin' on Bobo. It's the most energetic album I've ever heard. Joe Perry is a damn good guitar player. A lot better than I ever gave him credit for. For a non-blues band they sound pretty good on several songs. I can't play that cd at normal volume. I just turn it up and enjoy. Manual, look for a album by Jon Mark and Mark Almond. It's called Mark-Almond and was recorded in a church in the Bay Area I believe. It's really nice to listen to and the acoustics of the church make the music really full sounding.

---