Does that school of thought, though tested and tried experience, suggest what % the amp be rated beyond the rating of the driver? 10% (e.g. 330watt amp for 300 watt driver?)

I am not looking to put more through the 1pis, as it seems unlikely the surround channels would really receive a signal from the preamp that would even hit the 100W they are rated for (correct me if I'm wrong).

I guess I would be more concerned with ensuring the 4pis and subs are used to their full potential.
