Subject: Check out the pricing on wire, etc.
Posted by FloydV on Thu, 22 Mar 2012 01:31:05 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Monoprice first came to my attention on AVS forum. I just bought 300 feet of 14 gauge twin lead speaker wire. It's the kind that has a red or blue stripe running the entire length, so you know what is positive on the other end of a run. It cost me $70.00.

They have all kinds of lengths of fiber optic cable with metal protected ends and the entire length is metal braided. The stuff is amazingly cheap and really good.

Put all you stuff in one order though. You can easily pay more in shipping and handling than the price of the merchandise if you order one thing today and another the next. The shipping is reasonable, but not if you are ordering $5.00 worth of wall plate or such in one order and a few odds and ends in another.

They have HDMI cables of the latest version. They are heavy enough to be used as a weapon.

Anyway, they were one of the few good surprises I've run across.

Floyd