Hi, An uncertain thing for sure. I thought that when it was put into effect over the objection of many folks this might happen. Even in Washington, it is bad form to steam roller things like this. The unfortunate thing is that some of it makes sense. Everyone sooner or later needs health care, but cramming the process down everyone's throat is not the way to get it. Worse, folks that can't afford it now will get "fined" for not having it. Sort of a financial oxymoron. That makes it worse for low income families. I think we need a different solution.
