That's awesome, Bill. Glad to hear the plate amp wasn't broken and that all that was wrong was the Y connector. I'm with you on the double outputs on the preamps - it's a mandatory option for me these days. I've done the Y-cable thing too, but much prefer to have dual plugs on the back of the preamp.

I've got an RDAC front end on my system these days, and I've installed dual outputs on it. I should send you a couple of the RDAC/processor chipsets - if you're interested in a little project, I will. It's like a stepped attenuator with a remote control.
