As A follow on to the previous post.... the assembled KT120 Mono Blocks look just the ones at LSAF except they have a different size logo on them. The photos were taken about a month ago and since then I started using the KT88 mono blocks on the subs instead of a SS amp. Perhaps just my imagination...but they seem to integrate better. At 50 HZ and down they really should not matter that much... but none the less it seems better. Oddblocks make great sub amps BTW as they are flat to about 10HZ.
