3D Television sets have not reached their full potential yet. A lot of them still only lets a few people watch them at once, and the 3D glasses are often expensive. I've also heard that many people get headaches from watching television in 3D for so long.

I would personally wait a few years and see if the prices come down. I went into Best Buy the other day and saw that they had their 3D TV's priced at over $2,000.
