It does look kinda cluttered with wires, but most of that is input and output connections. The actual "meat" of the circuit is very simple - Just four chips. And two of those are for the display, so really, the whole brains of the system is just two chips. Probably as simple as it gets.

I think yours will be nice and clean, using Uriah's printed circuit boards. You'll have to snap a few photos to show the difference a PCB makes.