Yes, that's pretty much what I had in mind. I assume you're suggesting running the mains full-range with the helper subs. I was trying to avoid running the mains too low since both my mains and AVR amp are fairly small, and I'm worried about compromising system headroom. If at all possible, I'd prefer to move all of the low bass to only the flanking subs while still getting the mid-bass blending with the mains.

Thanks, Darrell
