Hi, Considering how much is already stuffed into the laptop, it is really no surprise to me that the speakers are rather marginal. Think about how large the speakers need to be to deliver quality sound. I personally have never seen any with a diameter of under 4 inches that were worth the trouble and even then the response below 100HZ is zilch. Would you trade off portability for a 15 pound laptop with better speakers? I wouldn't. I figure that is what headphones are for.
